The children in Clonown National School took part in a Readathon in aid of Multiple Sclerosis. From this Niamh Molloy was chosen as one of a hundred children in Ireland to go to Dublin where she was awarded with a plaque and some books and got to meet some of the authors of children's books. Well done Niamh!

The old desks

The old desks have found new homes in houses around the area. Two of them have ended up in Derryglad Museum where they will be on display in a new classroom that has been added to the museum. Anyone who has not visited this museum should do so as it is a fascinating display of objects of bygone days.
